Educational Philosophy: I believe that an Early Childhood Educator is one of the most important jobs out there. At this age, every little moment can be a learning experience for a child and there is never a second where you aren't a role model to these children. They are constantly exploring, learning and taking everything in around them. By enhancing their development with appropriated practices, we are guiding these children into the people of the future. We are providing them with experiences that will change the way they look at themselves, each other and the world around them. I take this responsibility very seriously and with each day aspire to be better at what I do. This is a job where the learning is never over and I enjoy that, every day a new challenge and every day new ways to overcome that challenge. I love what I do and am happy to know I found a job to inspire me to progress.
